

VITAMIN THERAPY

Vitamin therapy is an effective way to deliver nutrients and vitamins to the body because this technique works with the circulatory system. Supplements are administered directly into the bloodstream, by-passing the digestive system, making nutrients readily available for immediate use.

Vitamin therapy ensures close to 100% absorption for maximum effect and minimal waste. Because nutrients and supplements are delivered directly to the cells that need them, vitamin therapy has the potential to impact and improve the function of a wide variety of body systems.
